What’s in it for you?
In addition to a life-changing job experience, colleagues committed to student success, and a storied KU tradition, you’ll be part of:
• a learning-centered residential environment.
• implementing a residential curriculum for undergraduates.
• furthering the academic mission of the institution by bettering the lives of students.

Complex Director Compensation
• Annual salary starting at $35,000, plus full-time staff benefits including accrued leave and matched retirement plan.
• Fully furnished apartment plus cable, utilities, wireless Internet, laundry allowance, cell phone allowance and dining.
• Dining plan allows you to host dependents, domestic partners or approved roommate.
• Financial support to attend annual regional conference, plus tuition assistance program available.

Graduate Student Compensation
• $11,000 academic year salary and group health insurance options.
• Furnished apartment plus cable, utilities, wireless Internet, laundry allowance, cell phone allowance and dining.
• Financial support to attend annual regional conference.
• In-state tuition for the higher education administration program tuition is $363 per credit hour plus semester fee of $675 for total cost of about $7,885 per academic year.
• A couple of other considerations
• Total compensation package — including salary and room and board — valued at about $22,600.
• You are eligible for in-state tuition, but this is not a GTA appointment (as with other schools); therefore, tuition waivers are not available.

LEARN
YOUR OPPORTUNITIES

Complex directors
KU complex directors are leaders on campus and in regional professional organizations. They supervise full-time and graduate level staff, chair departmental committees, and teach university courses.

Graduate students
Student Housing graduate students pursue their educational goals at KU, while serving as an integral part of the senior staff team. They supervise undergraduate staff, foster academic environments, and serve as student conduct officers.

OUR THREE COMMUNITIES

Residence halls
Six of our complex directors and 12 graduate students serve the 3,300 residents in our eight residence halls. Student Housing will open two new halls in 2015.

Scholarship halls
One complex director and six graduate students serve 600 residents who live in 12 cooperative halls, in which students cook and clean for a reduced housing rate.

Apartments
One complex director and two graduate students serve upperclass students in Jayhawker Towers and McCarthy Hall on-campus apartments.

STUDENT HOUSING MISSION

Building learning-centered communities through individual support and respect.

YOU are vital to developing student leaders.

ENJOY THESE KU TRADITIONS

THE JAYHAWK.
A mythical bird whose origin began with the historic struggles of Kansas settlers. The name, coined about 1848, combines two birds—the blue jay, a noisy, quarrelsome thing known to rob other nests; and the sparrow hawk, a stealthy hunter. The message: Don’t turn your back on this bird.

ROCK CHALK CHANT.
KU’s world famous Rock Chalk Chant evolved from a cheer that a chemistry professor, E.H.S. Bailey, created for the KU science club in 1886. Bailey’s version was “Rah, Rah, Jayhawk, KU” repeated three times. The rahs were later replaced by “Rock Chalk,” a transposition of chalk rock, the name for the limestone outcropping found on Mount Oread, site of the Lawrence campus. The chant became known worldwide. Teddy Roosevelt pronounced it the greatest college chant he’d ever heard.

WAVING THE WHEAT.
At crucial moments — for example, a basketball opponent fouls out — Jayhawks lift their arms and slowly wave them back and forth. From a distance, this looks like a field of Kansas wheat swaying in a prairie breeze.

WALKING DOWN THE HILL.
This graduation tradition started in 1907. Today, graduates cross through the World War II Memorial Campanile and down the steep hill to Memorial Stadium. Watching the 4,000-plus cap and gown-clad graduates making their way into the stadium is truly amazing. Some are teary, some are joyous. All are proud. We hope you’ll join them.
